DUCK LUCK

COPYRIGHT 1941 BY WESTERN PRINTING & LITHO. CO.

"Tum, ta-dum," a wildcat hummed to himself as he crept through the woods to the duck pond. "I'll fool Yakky Doodle today for sure. I've been practicing duck-talk until I sound more like one than he does."

The wildcat concealed himself by the edge of the duck pond.

"Quackety-quack," he called. "I'm a poor lost duck. Will someone help me?"

"Wak!" Yakky called from the center of the pond. "I'll help you out, friend."

The wildcat became so anxious to capture Yakky that he slipped into the water. With a cry, he leaped back to dry land.

Catching a glimpse of the wildcat, Yakky quickly sped to the other side of the pond calling, "I'll be right along!"

There, a new danger confronted Yakky. Unknown to either the duckling or the wildcat, a prowling coyote was resting in the tall grass on that side of the pond. As Yakky swam close to shore, the coyote scooped him up with a growl of triumph.

"Wak! This sure is an unlucky day for little ducks," Yakky groaned, as the coyote held him fast.

"But it's a lucky day for me," the coyote grinned. "Although," he added, "I must admit that I would much prefer to have captured that big duck I heard on the other side of the pond. A little piece of fluff like you isn't much of a meal."

"Hmmm," Yakky thought to himself, as he listened to the coyote's comment with interest. "Maybe I can turn my bad luck into good luck and get rid of both of my enemies at the same time."

Squirming around in the coyote's grasp, Yakky pleaded, "Put me down a minute, and I'll tell you how you can capture that 'big duck,' if you'll promise to let me go."

The coyote stopped at once, his eyes shining with anticipation.

"It's a deal," he growled eagerly.

"Just follow behind me so you won't be seen," Yakky instructed. "We'll creep around the tall grass to the other side of the pond. I'll call to the other 'duck,' and I'll tell him I'm coming over."

"Then," the coyote concluded, "when we get close enough, I'll jump on him! Lead on, ducky, I'm right behind you."

Yakky Doodle waddled through the grass, hoping that the wildcat would not see the coyote creeping along behind him.

"Yoo-heo, Mr. Big Duck in the bushes," he called. "I'm coming over to see you."

Over in the thick bush, the wildcat giggled with glee.

"He didn't see me, after all!" he tittered. "Boy, is he going to get a surprise?"

Closer and closer Yakky waddled toward the bush. When he was just a few feet away, the wildcat sprang out of the bush. At the same moment, the coyote leaped up from the grass behind the duckling.

For a brief time, fur flew in all directions; but then, since neither one of the animals wanted to tangle with the other, they pelted off in opposite directions.

Yakky had hurried back into his pond as soon as the fur began to fly.

"Wak!" he now laughed with relief. "Mr. Wildcat will think twice before he tries to imitate a big duck again. As a matter of fact, something tells me it'll be a long time before either of those characters come around my duck pond again!"

SPRING COMICS LINE-UP FEATURES MERRY MIX OF FUN AND ADVENTURE

BRAND NEW!

From the Zodiac comes ZODY THE MOD ROB, a most remarkable humanized computer. To the amazement of his two teen-age friends, Zody is able to predict coming events...and he knows all the answers even before things happen! He's an astrological, terrestrial phenomenon, doing his thing right here on good old terra firma!

FRENCH LEAVE

Jody hears Mr. French is leaving and tells Cissy and Buffy the sad news. There can be only one reason, they conclude—Uncle Bill can't afford to keep him on! What do the kids do about it? You'll find out—to your enjoyment—when you read next month's FAMILY AFFAIR.

TARZAN AND THE FOREIGN LEGION

Based on the famous story by Edgar Rice Burroughs, this authentic adaptation is one that the legion of Tarzan fans won't want to miss in the next TARZAN OF THE APES.

TRUE WEIRD STORIES

You'll find these spellbinders in the next issue of RIPLEY'S BELIEVE IT OR NOT!

APRIL TITLES READY TO ROLL OFF PRESSES

More variety, more fun and adventure than ever—those are the Gold Keywords for the books we've planned for the new season. So sharpen your pencils for the checklist in your Comics Guide—a popular feature with our readers who want to know "what's up" with Gold Key Comics.

UNSEEN HANDS

Strange captors lurk in the depths ready to seize the unfortunate victims who cross their watery domain. And the unlucky ones are Turok and Andar, in this suspense-filled issue of TUROK, SON OF STONE.

NOW ON SALE!

It's here—GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS, the Gold Key issue based on the great M-G-M motion picture.
